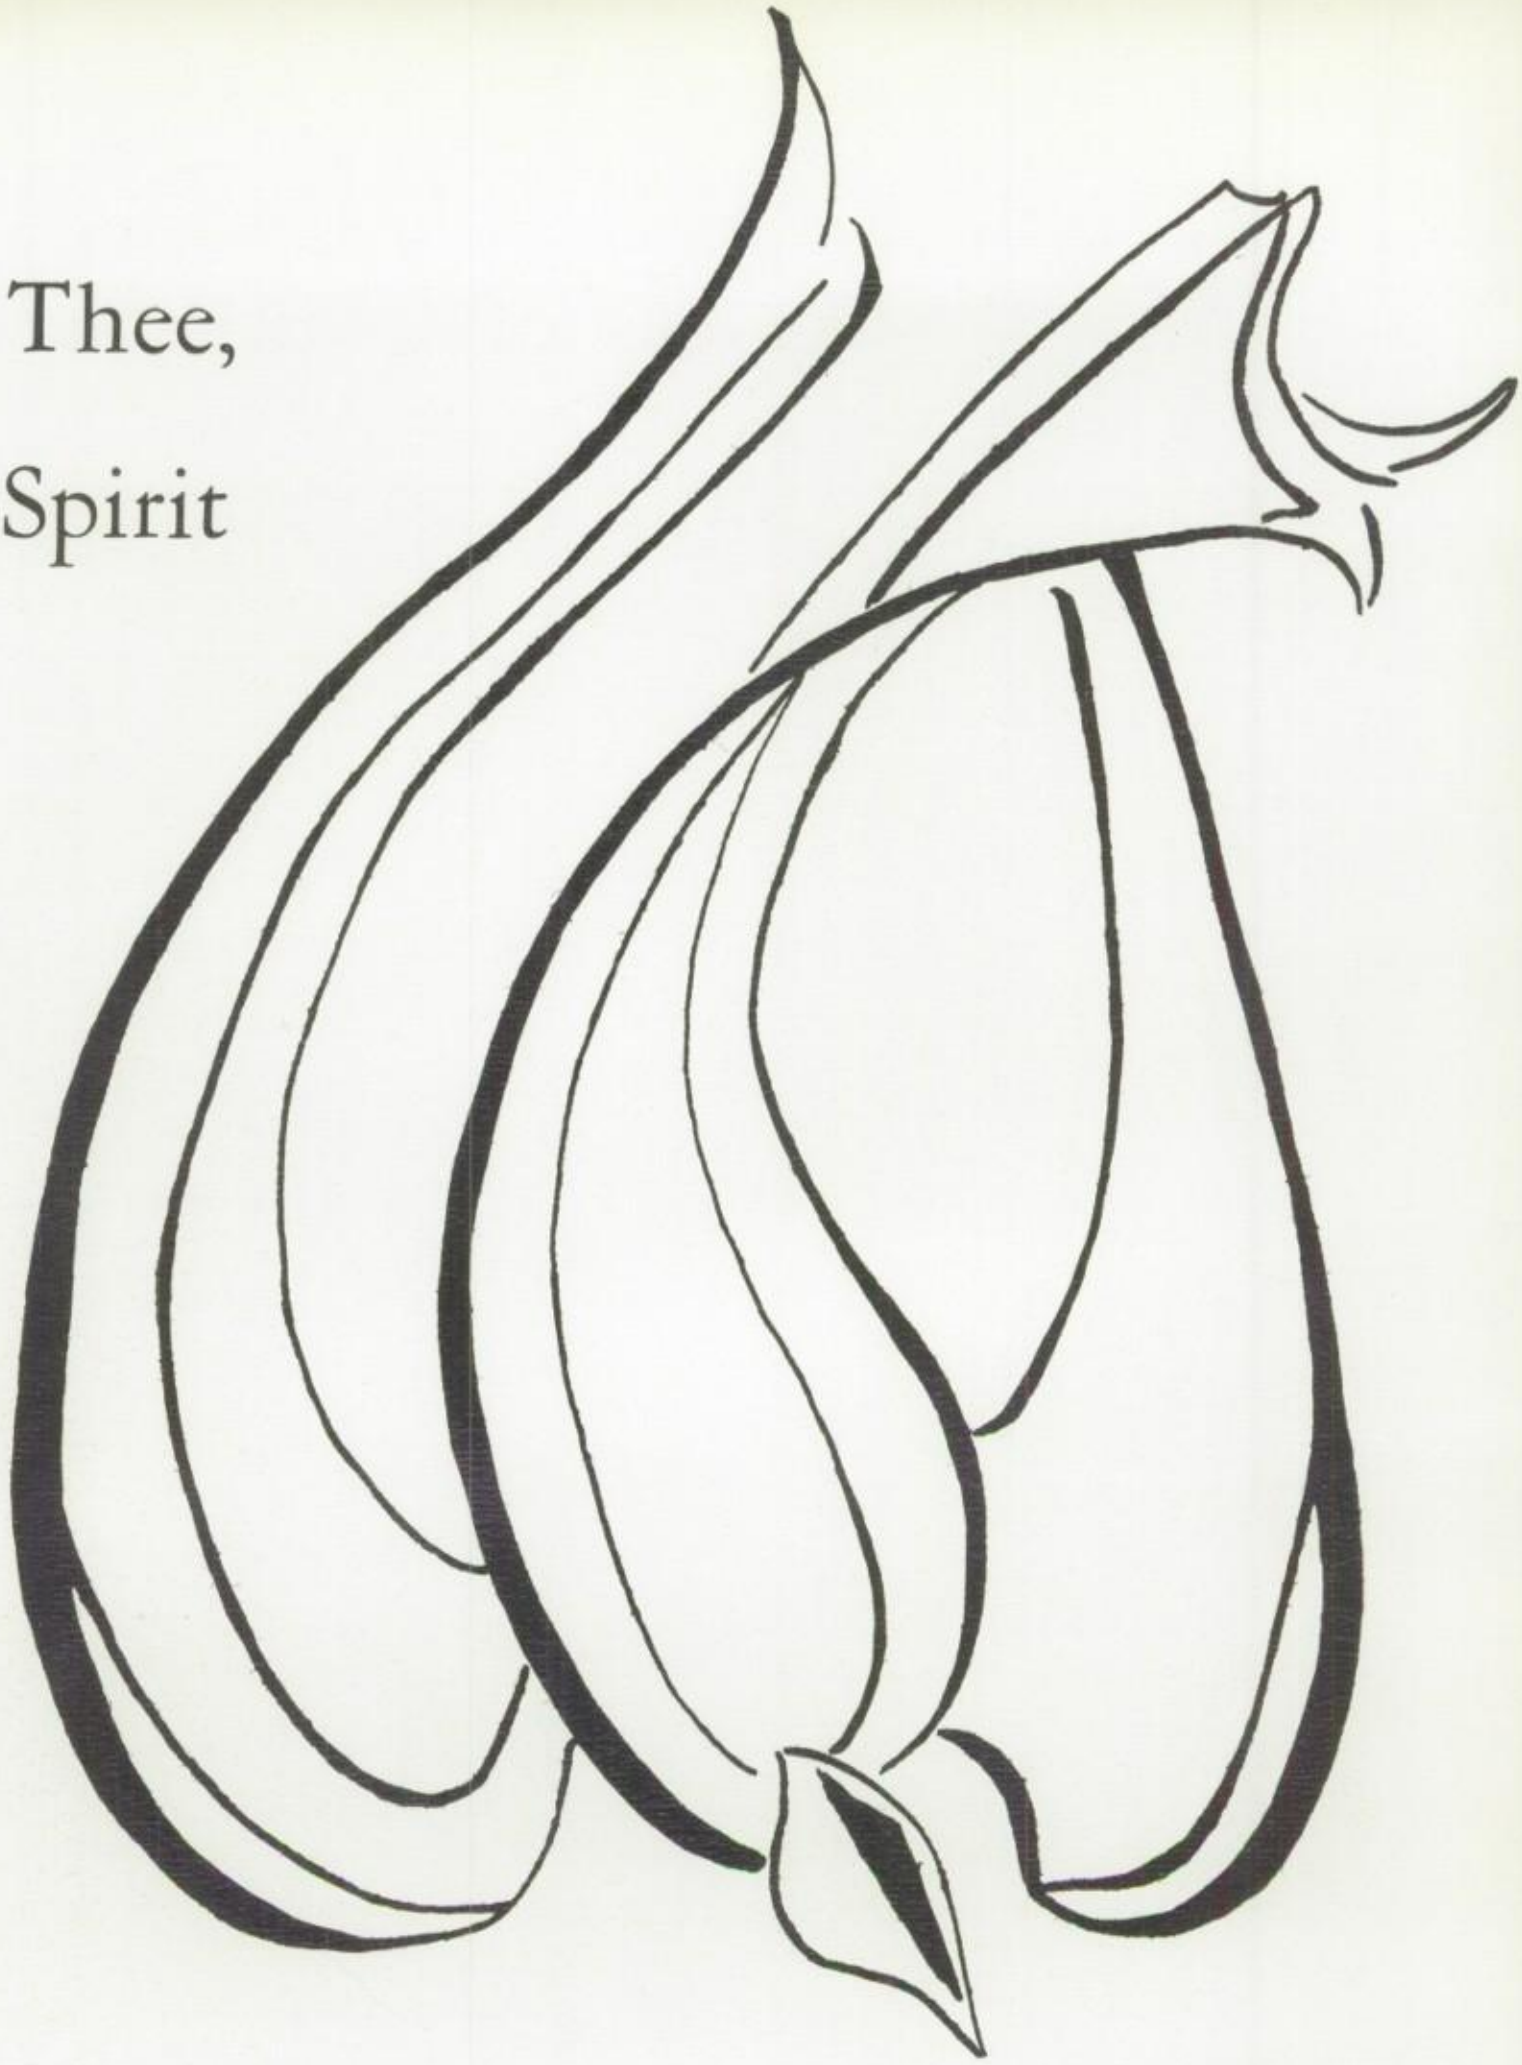
To Thee,

Holy Spirit



Who has guided us in our search for knowledge, Who has directed our inexperience, and Who has strengthened us to do God's will, we gratefully dedicate our yearbook.

We Turn For Counsel

Invoking the guidance of the Holy Spirit at the Second Vatican Council, Our Holy Father Pope John XXIII gave to the world an instrument of peace, unity and charity. We as students participated in this Council by offering our prayers and sacrifices for its success.

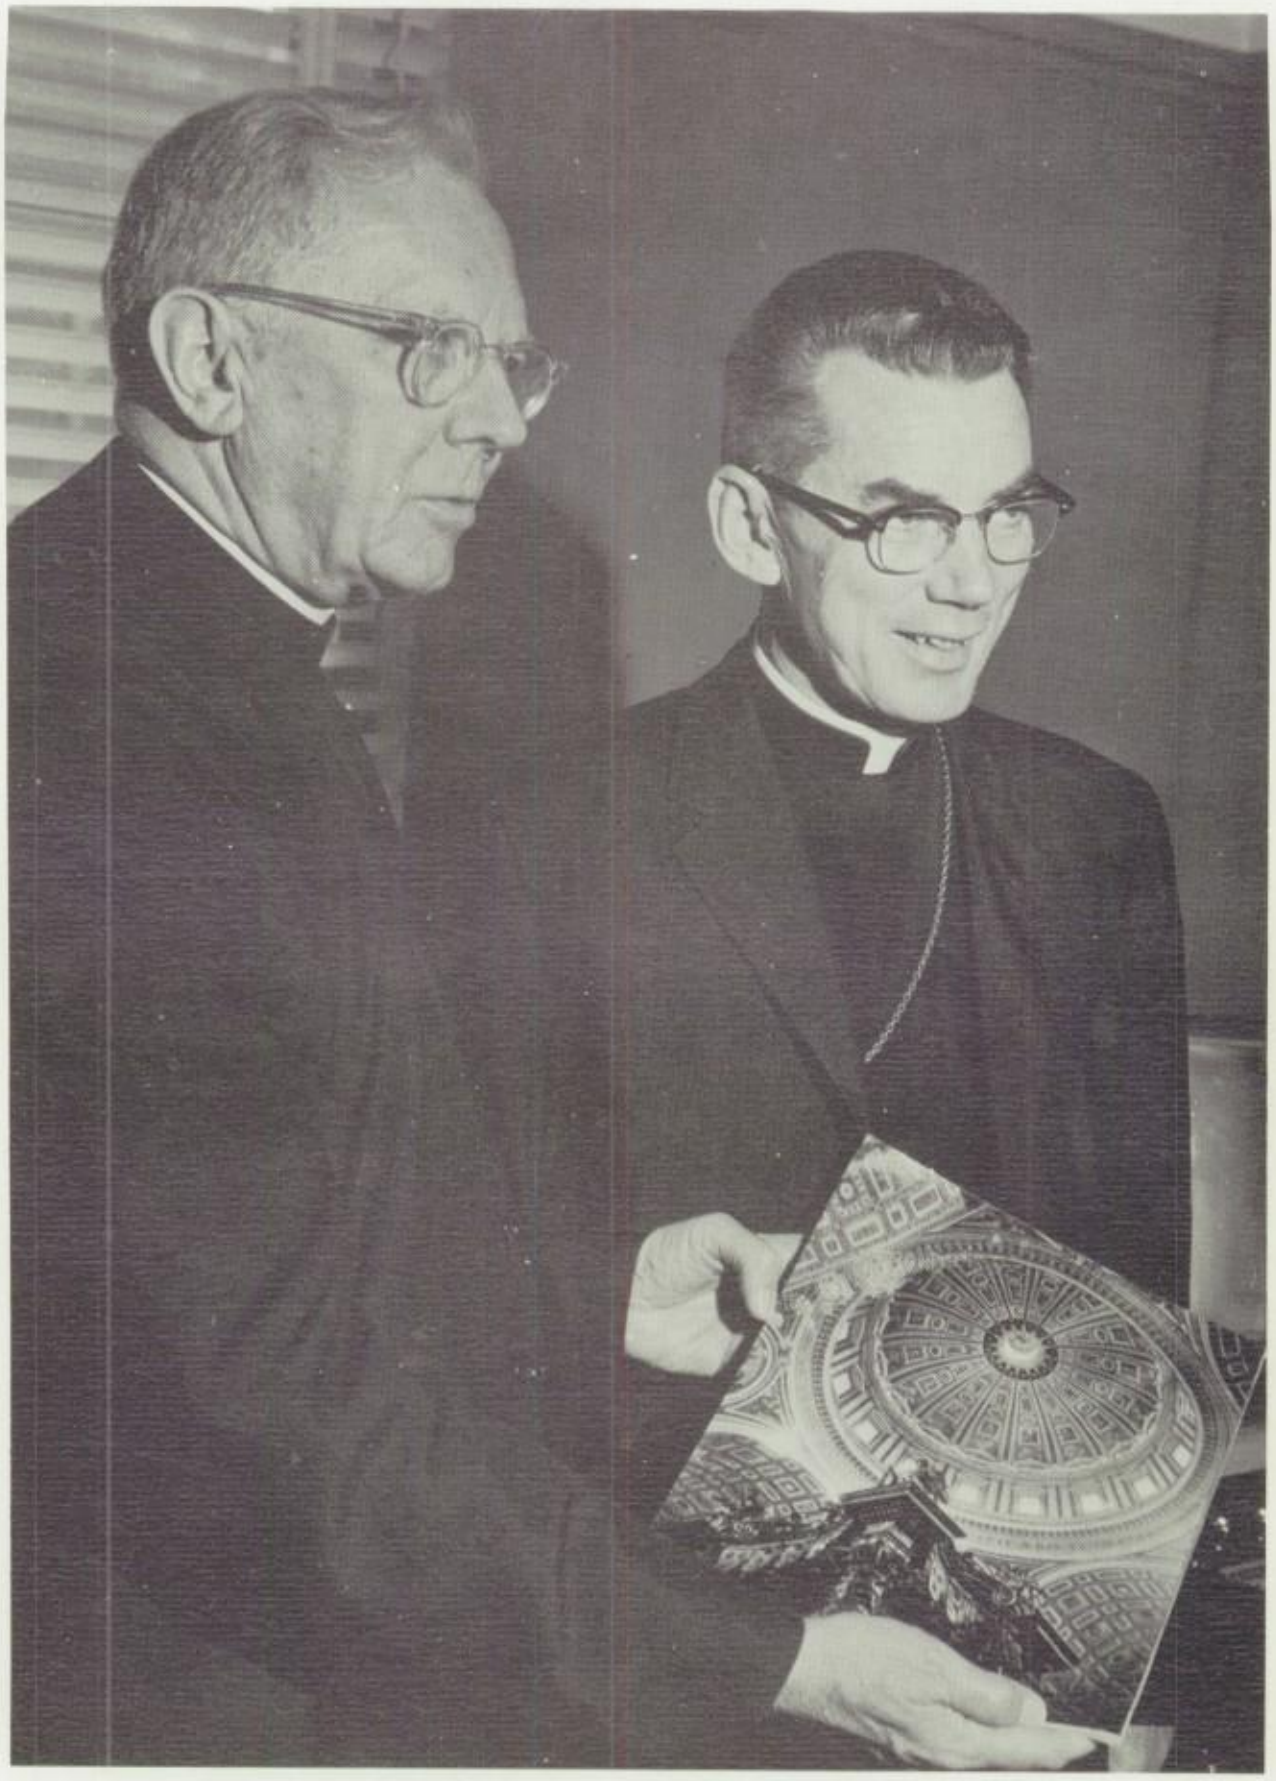
Dear Graduates:

As you leave St. Andrew's you carry with you many memories. The thoughts of your teachers, your classmates, your studies, and the many events, both religious and social will always be held sacred. Outstanding among your recollections will be the great Council which convened during your senior year. This spiritual conclave will be recalled, not merely as a singular event of the twentieth century, but also as something which placed you in an atmosphere of holy dedication as you faced the realities of a turbulent world.

Pope John called this Council to show forth the hidden beauty of the Church and to revitalize the spirit of Christian living. He urged the faithful "To open their hearts to the action of divine grace and to let the light of eternal truth shed its radiance over lives that are wholeheartedly and enthusiastically dedicated towards putting into effect the Commandments of Jesus Christ." Your education in St. Andrew's was fashioned according to the same manner. As you depart from your Alma Mater under Mary's protection, endeavor to make manifest by your Christian living the inner strength which you possess.

Devotedly yours in Christ,
Monsignor James Hourihan

Journey to Rome



His Eminence James Francis Cardinal McIntyre and Bishop Timothy Manning, Auxiliary of Los Angeles, prepare for their trip to Rome to attend the Ecumenical Council. As our representatives, they will aid the Pope in his endeavors for renewal of the internal life of the Church and Christian unity.

A Clean Sweep

Faithful members of our custodian staff, Mrs. Mary Enriquez and Mr. Vincent Gonzalez, constantly strive to add to the comfort and cleanliness of our school. The success of their efforts is evident in the impeccable appearance of our halls and classrooms.

A familiar figure around St. Andrew's, Vince often proves a "life saver" to students in desperate need of his assistance.

With patience, efficiency, and cheerfulness Mrs. Enriquez helps to keep St. Andrew's in "apple pie" order.

STUDIES

Religion

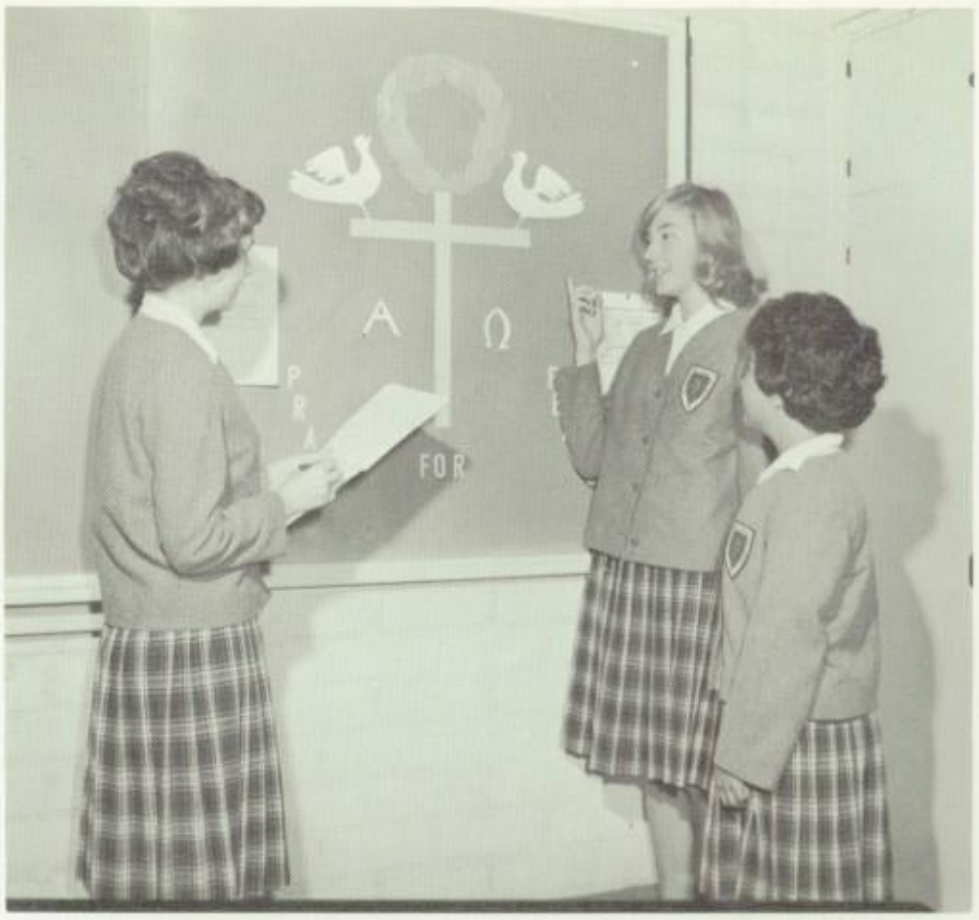
Studying the New Testament and the Ten Commandments, freshmen learn that all law comes from God, and leads back to Him.

Building on the basic truths learned in the previous year, sophomores study Christ as Redeemer through whom they share in the life of grace by means of prayer and the Sacraments.

To inspire the junior students to a voluntary participation in the liturgy of the Church, they are led to a recognition of the Holy Spirit as the dominant force in their lives.

Seniors study vocation as the sphere in which the life of love reaches perfection, becoming for them a blueprint for personal happiness.

Considerations on the meaning of the Ecumenical Council, why it was called, what it will do, and how it will work, have been incorporated in the religion course.



Students of Religion II explain symbols representing Christ as the Prince of Peace and the beginning and end of all things.

"The Ecumenical Council is you!" Religion III students set out to discover their part in the life of the church.

In the Marriage Guidance Course, Father Acton exchanges views with the seniors on the qualities of the ideal husband.

Study of the fascinating Greek myths enlivens this World History class.

History

Since knowledge of history is of great importance, the students at St. Andrew's are offered a four year course to enable them to understand the complicated problems affecting our nation and the world.

Freshmen in Ancient History learn that western culture had its beginnings in Greece and Rome.

Jousts, tournaments, castles and cathedrals fascinate sophomore students of history with the pomp and panoply which mark the Middle Ages.

From the beginnings of the modern world, through the colonial expansions of European nations to the discovery of the New World, junior students find history vibrant with the impact of exploration and development.

Looking forward to the day when they will be full-fledged citizens with voting rights, senior students of civics acquire an awareness of their privileges and responsibilities.

Juniors in United States History participate in a discussion on the problems of a divided Berlin.

"And this is where King Tut's tomb was excavated," says Leslie McCaleb.

Nixon and Brown supporters engage in a heated debate in this senior civics class.

It is an easy choice when everyone in Language Arts Class knows the answers.

From David Copperfield to Macbeth, the four years of English at St. Andrew's cover a wide range of literature and writing. Sophomores bringing with them a solid foundation in grammar, learn to recognize and avoid run-on and fragment sentences. Numerous essay assignments, though dreaded, teach the juniors to organize their thoughts and to reason logically. Since ideas achieve their full value only when communicated to others, the skill of writing clearly and interestingly is developed in English IV. Reading is stressed throughout the four-year program as students span the centuries from the English epic of Beowulf to the modern American drama of Our Town.

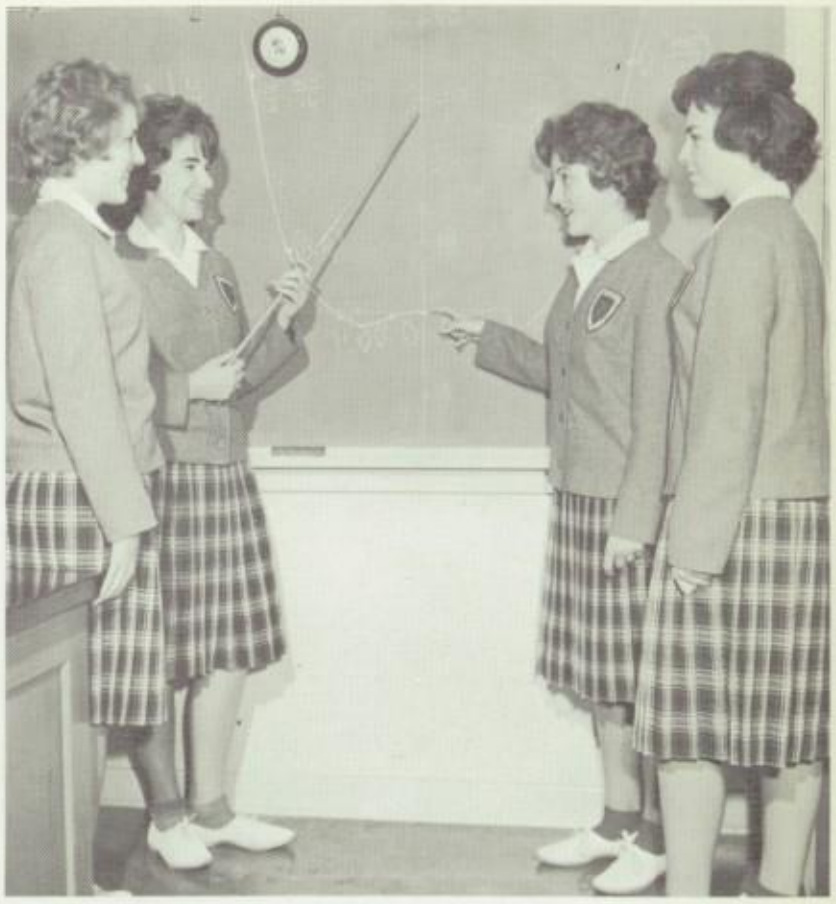
English

Illustrations add interest to a report given in English II.

Senior students of English become acquainted with people, plots and places of Shakespeare's England.

Mathematics

Algebra II students suspect that pencil and paper would have been quicker than the slide rule.



Senior math students graph the function f: $x\text{-}x^4 2x^2$ using critical points and inflection points.

There is more than one angle to a problem.

To freshmen, general math and Algebra I present at first only a maze of riddles, but with persistent endeavor, the x's and y's and the bewildering percentages are soon mastered. Geometry also has its difficulties, but sophomores find solutions through logical reasoning. Algebra II and senior math broaden upperclassmen's knowledge of the infinite number systems. Those students following the School Mathematics Study Group Program find it both challenging and rewarding.

Lang

"Cuidado con la C!" Margaret Werner helps correct a slight error.

Salve! Buenos Dias! Bon Jour! However it is said, it means "welcome" whether in ancient Rome, sunny Spain or gay Paris. The spelling and sounds of the languages may differ, but students learning a foreign tongue are alike in their enthusiasm and interest as they pursue their assignments. Latin comes alive in the unadorned style of General Julius Caesar, in the fiery rhetoric of the politician, Cicero, and in the flowing verse of the poet, Virgil. Although students of French and Spanish must begin with the fundamentals of grammar and easy stories, they eventually progress to the reading of novels in the original, such as Le Petit Prince, Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Don Quixote, and El Cid. Through acquaintance with the language, history and culture of other countries, students gain an understanding and appreciation of foreign lands.

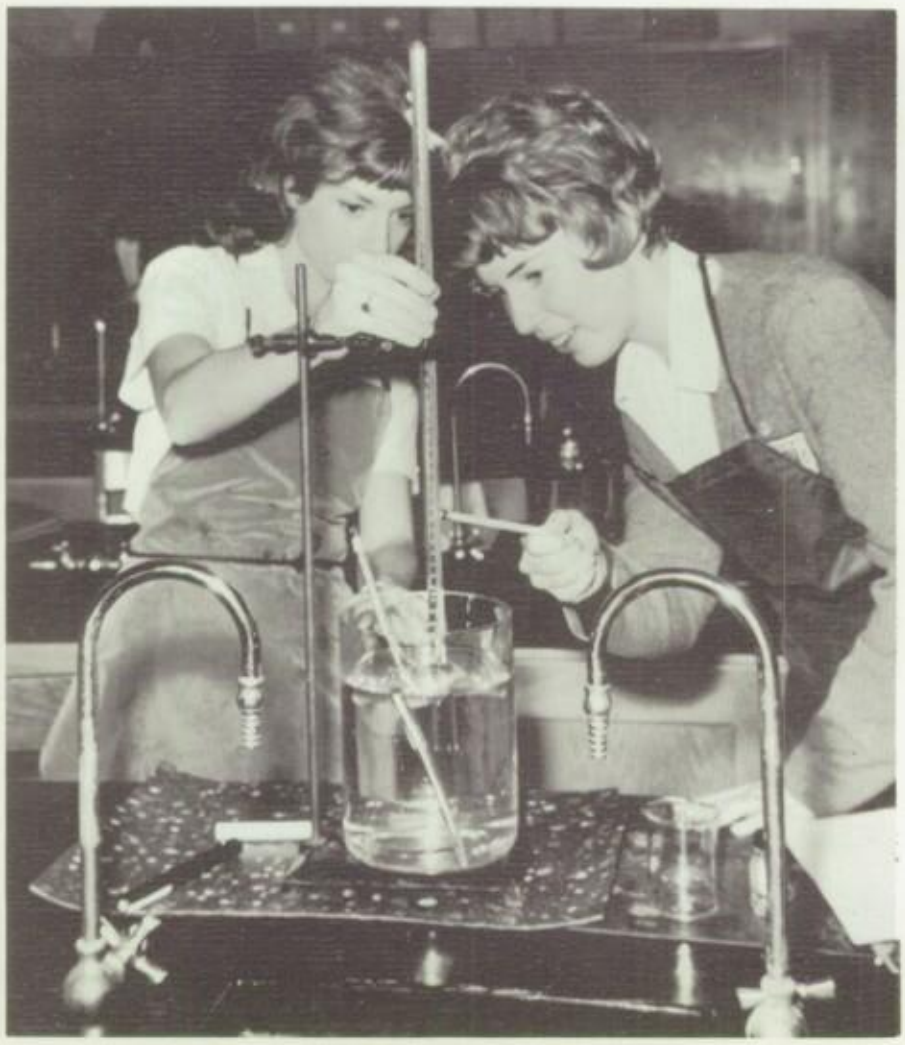
Nous parlons bien Français, n'est-ce pas?

L'Alliance Collegienne of La Salle joins with the St. Andrew's members of la Cercle Français in a game about the French provinces.

"Don't be chicken," says Susan Wood to Peggy Collins. Conchita Dowling looks on as preparations are made for a microscopic examination of the cell structure in the blood.



"We have exactly 78 millimeters of hydrogen!" Diane Dimura and Anne Reilly are delighted with their results in finding equivalent weights.

At St. Andrew's a variety of science courses is offered for college preparatory students in laboratory sciences. Chemistry is offered to juniors; seniors may choose either physics or biology.

Two special courses were added this year. Principles of the Physical Sciences was made available to freshmen with high scholastic attainments, and Principles of the Biological Sciences gave enterprising sophomores a similar challenge.

As a survey course, general science fulfills graduation requirements for some; to others it offers a background for further studies in this field.

Measuring the distance to the wall, Nancy Braun helps Marianne Kandel calibrate the wall on the range finder.

"Our mistle-toe project is going great!"

Ananias, the pet project of the science students, Karen Efker and Christine Ward is center of attraction.

Business

In our business department, potential secretaries are taught the use of various types of modern office equipment. Students of typing learn the fundamentals of office work as well as first aid for broken finger nails. Although Gregg shorthand seems confusing at first, future stenographers master the skill of turning words into legible signs. The most noticeable results of the bookkeeping class are uncluttered desks and organized files. An important part of their course is learning proper selection of clothes, becoming hair styles, and the general deportment a secretary needs.

Even one mistake is forbidden in the Typing II class.

"This is where the paper goes." "But what do you do with this?" asks Nora Gaylor.

Special Interests

Drama student, Kathy Ross, portrays the character of an angry mother.

Physical Education, dancing, clothing and drama are the special interest courses offered at St. Andrew's. Physical fitness, a knowledge of basic rules and good sportsmanship are the results of gym classes at St. Andrew's. Dancing is a class taken by sophomores which teaches them basic dance steps and social etiquette. The terms bias, selvedge, and placket are familiar to clothing students who learn the useful art of sewing. In drama aspiring actresses acquire poise and learn the art of expressing themselves.

Choral students blend voices in an informal get-together.

An appreciation of the arts broadens the students' cultural horizons. Studying compositions from the classical to the impressionistic period, Music Appreciation Class provides the students with listening experience and a sound basis for discriminating musical judgment. Relaxing, stimulating, enjoyable — these are the adjectives most frequently applied to the art classes of St.Andrew's,In these informal groups, ingenuity, imagination, and enthusiasm are important requirements. Students exchange constructive criticism and compliments as they work on their projects. Examples of their work in painting, drawing, and collage are displayed throughout the room. Whether the students plan a career in fashion designing, interior decorating, or commercial art, they acquire an appreciation of "the beauty in the world around them."

Fine Arts

Seniors follow the music as they listen to Schubert's Unfinished Symphony.

Sister Anne Rose comes to the aid of an art appreciation student who has her lines crossed.

Ingenuity and industry are the elements of success in the Art I class.

Advanced students display their attempts at modern art.

Challenge to Generosity

To produce effective and dedicated Catholic leaders who are capable of turning the possibility of failure into an exciting challenge is the aim of the Sodality. At level and committee meetings, experienced and new members alike debate such topics as decency in literature and morality in dress and receive individual spiritual guidance. Realizing that action must flow from prayer and discussion, Sodalists participate in a number of apostolic projects. An intimate union with Christ inspires a persistent desire to win souls for God; thus, they are constantly alert to opportunities to bring Him into their daily lives. Trained and encouraged by the Sodality, each member eagerly accepts her role as a Christ-bearer in the modern world.

Diane Dimura, Kathleen Wall, Linda Doble, Anne Reilley, and Martha Lambertus sort magazines to be sent to missions near and far.

G.A.A. Pro-

A ball slowly rolling around the rim of a basket, a desperate leap to return a volleyball serve, an ear-splitting St. Andrew's cheer create the suspense and excitement of varsity games shared by all students as participants or spectators. With swimming and tennis added, students are offered a varied sports program to develop coordination and physical fitness.

Through training in athletic proficiency, the Girls' Athletic Association endeavors to promote school spirit and sportsmanship. Team mascots, our Daddy and Andy Atoms, and coveted spirit banners spark fierce competition among classes, but the entire school unites to meet the challenge of other high school teams.

Generosity— Key to Service Club

Loyalty, dedication, and responsibility are the marks of students chosen to be members of the Service Club. Assisting the faculty and student body, they sponsor a variety of activities from the rental of berets, and supervision of the Lost and Found Department to the sale of snacks and desserts to starving students. Club members assigned to individual posts are also responsible for the immaculate condition of the lounges and campus. Climaxing a year of outstanding service to the school, the Service Club hosts the last dance of the school year.

Power of the TOWER is Shattered nerves and lost tempers can usually be found in the Tower room where staff members gather to create the 1963 Tower. Well-worn erasers, piles of papers, and overflowing waste-baskets are often the only apparent results of a typical work session, but the finished product proves that the desperate struggles to meet deadlines are successful. Frustration, annoyance, and near-despair, unforgettable and inescapable emotions shared by each faithful staff member, are suddenly transformed into pride and joy on the day when the arrival of the yearbooks is announced to an eager and appreciative student body. At that long-awaited moment, the hours of work are amply rewarded.

Dewey Decimals Dispel Doubts

What are the important responsibilities of the Library Club? In addition to shelving books, filing cards, and keeping the library neat and orderly, student librarians aid harassed students in their frantic, last minute search for books which are inevitably out. Money accruing from overdue books, which happily seem to be in abundance, is used to purchase new books, which, in due time, also become overdue. Without the aid of the Library Club, much time would be wasted in a frustrating search for necessary books and information.

Red Cross Builds Strong Community

Caring for the sick and building good will among the youth of many nations are the main objectives of the Red Cross. Practical application of their motto, "Love your neighbor as yourself" is shown in their active participation in the numerous activities sponsored by this organization. Both young and old appreciate the work done by the members who make books, toys, and tray favors.

SCHOOL LIFE

My Eyes Are Turned Toward the Lord.

Annually, a day of prayer and reflection breaks into a busy schedule, giving us a necessary opportunity to reorganize our spiritual lives. Father Sartoris, while holding our attention with humor and wit, hit hard at the basic truths upon which sincere Christian lives must be founded. He challenged us to meet the standards of Christlike living, and urged us to determine our goals for the ensuing year.

Reverend Joseph Sartoris—retreat director.

Leisure and quiet induce students to read and meditate.

During free time, students seek personal guidance through prayer.

The natives are restless!

Freshman Welcome— Native Style

September 21 was initiation day for the new freshmen. Over the public address system, a raucous voice announced that their judgment had arrived. Emerging from the gloomy darkness, cannibals escorted victims to their doom. Ominous sounds of throbbing native drums, and shrieks of fierce tribal leaders summoned withering freshmen to their fate: rolling bones with their noses, singing a native chant, and performing the tribal twist. Although victims weren't stewed by the cannibals, they were roasted by the onlookers, thus becoming officially initiated into the student body of St. Andrew's.

Everyone is set for cannibal soup—Senior Specialty.

"She has my nosebone!"

"Let's make a cake with my Betty Crocker spoon!"

Senior Dance Provides Welcome Intrusion

"Where's the skipper?"

Businessman's luncheon for senior tycoons.

Baking cookies, decorating the auditorium, and selling tickets formed a part of the preparation for the first dance of the year. The seniors' efforts were amply rewarded by the delight of all who attended their dance, Waves of Welcome. Colorful nautical decorations and the swinging rhythm of the "Intruders" gaily welcomed aboard both freshmen and returning students. It was an opportunity to begin or renew friendships, and a welcome intrusion into our daily routine.

"Intruders" welcome freshmen aboard S.S. St. Andrew's.

In the Beginning

Was the Word

Bibles are stacked and ready for the annual ceremony.

Monsignor speaks with a student aide.

Beginning the freshman year with the traditional Bible ceremony was aptly fitting. Right Reverend Monsignor James Hourihan, pastor, spoke to the assembled student body, reminding them of the sacredness of the inspired word of God, and exhorting them to use their Bibles faithfully. In this way would the Holy Spirit be their truth and their life.

Each freshman receives her Bible from Monsignor.

Juniors Weave Spell of Black Magic

Spiders in silky webs scattered about the auditorium helped set the theme for the dance, "Moonlight 'n' Witchcraft". To the haunting strains of the "Pageants", ghosts and guests danced, 'till the tolling bells at the 'witching hour of midnight' announced the conclusion of a perfect evening.

"Oh, come on, let's dance. That's why we came, remember?"

These exuberant dancers seem to have a monopoly on physical fitness.

"Just a little farther to the left," cautions Monica as the juniors plan their strategy of adjusting the lights.

That 'Old Black Magic' of trumpets and saxes intrigues these enthusiastic guests.

Mothers Enjoy Annual Tea

Faculty and Student Council welcome mothers and daughters.

Senior hostesses preside at urns.

One of the most enjoyable social functions of the year was the annual Mother-Daughter Tea on November 18, climaxing the careful preparations of the senior class under Social Chairman, Susan Steyart. All the parents were pleased with a return to the former plan affording the mothers of underclassmen as well as those of the juniors and seniors the opportunity of meeting the faculty members socially.

Linda Taylor helps Cynthia Holt at the refreshment table.

Royal Fantasy

The lyrics of When You Wish Upon A Star match the thoughts of the Royal Court as they begin the Queen's Dance.

The Royal Fantasy theme of the annual G.A.A. Ball was skillfully carried out with graceful festoons of angelhair which glistened under the soft blue lights and silver stars. The royal court was chosen from candidates representing every homeroom who had competed for the coveted honors of the evening. Guests exclaimed delightedly when G.A.A. President Elaine Vilven announced Rita Ottoson as the reigning queen. Striking up for the "Command Performance", the Royal Aires played the queen's dance which was followed by other dance tunes throughout the evening.

During a pause in the dancing, Elaine Vilven and escort approach the refreshment table.

Freshman Presentation

Freshmen pledge themselves to emulate the virtues of simplicity and love in imitation of their patron.

At the conclusion of the program, freshmen sing: 'In problems large and small, we conquer all."

Waving their colors, orange and white, and chanting the freshman cheer, the newest class of St. Andrew's marched down the center aisle to the front of the auditorium. This was the moment when the Class of '66 proudly disclosed its motto, It is in giving that we receive; the flower, Bird of Paradise; mascot, Dino the dinosaur; and the class song. As the curtains opened, revealing an inspiring tableau of St. Francis of Assisi, class patron, a quiet hush fell over the audience. After singing the prayer of St. Francis, "Lord, Make Me an Instrument of Thy Peace," the freshmen filed to their student body places.

me again!
Leanne

Cheerleaders intone the song: "We've got the spirit; we've got the fight; Hooray for the Orange and White!"

Candy Camps Consolidate

Kickoff rally sees toys come to life in the Nutcracker Sweet.

History repeats itself. So it was on November 16, 1962, when Corporal Hendrickson of the South accepted the Yankee challenge which began the second "Civil War". Under the spirited leadership of Secretary of War Hildum, the Blue and Gray struggled to bring victory to their camps. Armed with bars of World's Finest Chocolate and inspired by frenzied rallies, the Yanks and Rebs proved once again that St. Andrew's is tops in spirit. Unlike the preceding Civil War, however, the Senior Regiment led the South to victory in the fund-raising candy drive.

Even the hillbillies have heard about World's Finest Chocolate.

Seniors' victory jam session.

Tower Skits Boost Ads Drive

TOWER news reporter interviews an exile for her opinion on the strategy needed to win the TOWER push.

Preacher, Ellen Bennett exhorts all sinners to repent and sell the TOWER ads.

Bart Finkletter asks Haywood Snuff how he accounts for his phenomenal success in the TOWER drive.

Despite the blockade, news of the St. Andrew's capitalists in the TOWER drive reaches the bushlands.

Mary, Kathleen Williams, and Joseph, Kathleen Tobin, adore the new-born Babe with the Magi, shepherds, and angels.

Venite Adoremus

Verse choir recites the Roman Martyrlology for December 25.

Carols and hymns sung by the Choral provide background music for the Christmas play.

Jeannie Godfrey explains the true meaning of Christmas to a skeptical couple.

Through the combined efforts of the Drama and Choral Departments, the annual Advent program, including carols, readings and tableau, was presented on December 19. Set in a contemporary scene, the play was unusually successful in conveying to the audience the true Christmas spirit of selflessness and charity as opposed to the materialism emphasized in the modern world. The entire program inspired in the student body the hope and peace of the joyous Christmas season.

Last-minute emergencies backstage call for quick action by Mrs. Reeves, drama director.

TOWER queen, Kay Hinkley, '66 and court, Gloria Higuera, '64, Carolyn Taylor, '63, Carol Villamor, '66 and Cathy Gonzales, '63.

Student salesmanship, sparked by the winning seniors, and cooperation from business patrons combined to make the Tower drive a success again this year. Succeeding her sister, Queen Shirley '62, Kathleen Hinckley ascended to the throne and was crowned by Peggy Collins, Tower Editor. After the ceremony, Queen Kathleen, the court, faculty and guests were served refreshments in the Library.

The Queen and her family enjoy refreshments served in the library after the coronation.

Hard working sophomores install sidewalk cafe.

Linda Nicassio supervises the " planting" of ivy decorations.

Willkommen im Hof Braü

In presenting their dance, Hofbraü Hop, the sophomores extended warmth and friendliness in a typical German manner. The decorations of multi-colored Christmas bulbs, strung along the walls of the auditorium, supplied a unique atmosphere, further enhanced by a sidewalk cafe set up on the stage. Refreshments? Ja, wohl ! Old fashioned steins were filled with root beer, and wicker baskets on tables covered with red and white cloths, contained pretzels. Music by the Crescendos invited the guests to join their friends for an evening of old world fun and hospitality.

Du, du liegst mir im Herzen . . .
all agree that it is wunderbar.

Christians Show Way to Christ

"There's nothing gloomy about sanctity!" says Father Hoorman, who has no difficulty convincing these students.

Religious pamphlets are made available to the retreatants for for spiritual reading.

During the annual retreat on January 28, Reverend John Hoorman, C.PP.S., director, provided the students with a sound spiritual program. Emphasizing the need for Christian thinking in combating the materialistic outlook in the world, our director assured the student body that faithful living of the Ten Commandments would insure happiness now and in eternity. Father described an effective Christian as one who combines joy and love for others with a practical prayer life. An awareness of our privilege as daughters of God and princesses of Christ the King was the most striking grace of the three-day retreat.

After the renewal of our baptismal vows, followed by the Papal Blessing, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament closes the retreat.

Campus Scene

President Maureen Boyer accepts Noblesse Oblige cup for the Junior Class.

Student body receives genuine St. Andrew's spirit juice from cheerleaders and Pep Club members.

Cheerleaders urge students to "get cool" and attend the varsity basketball games.

Students Work Toward Awards

Joan Garretson graciously accepts the St. Francis Homecoming Queen spotlight.

To eat or not to eat her last candy bar is the question Heidi Hawkins debates. She was rated the top seller in the World's Finest Chocolate drive.

Sodality award winners in the Mother Mary Rose motto contest, Francine Van de Ven, Cynthia Holt, and Susan Sellars prove that Holy Name's Foundress had a great gift for the bon mot.

of the Year

After a fascinating exposition of her novel, His Own Dear Daughter, Mrs. Virginia Newell enjoys refreshments with faculty and library officers who sponsored her appearance.

Well known to St. Andrew's student body, Miss Mary Louise Hickey presented a most inspiring performance of The Miracle Worker.

Mr. John Dean, a businessman representing the Citizens for Decent Literature, gives a brief introduction to the movie, Pages of Death, which portrayed the debasing effects of pornography.

Guests Provide

Mrs. Marie Johnson advises students to think pink at parties during the Christmas season.

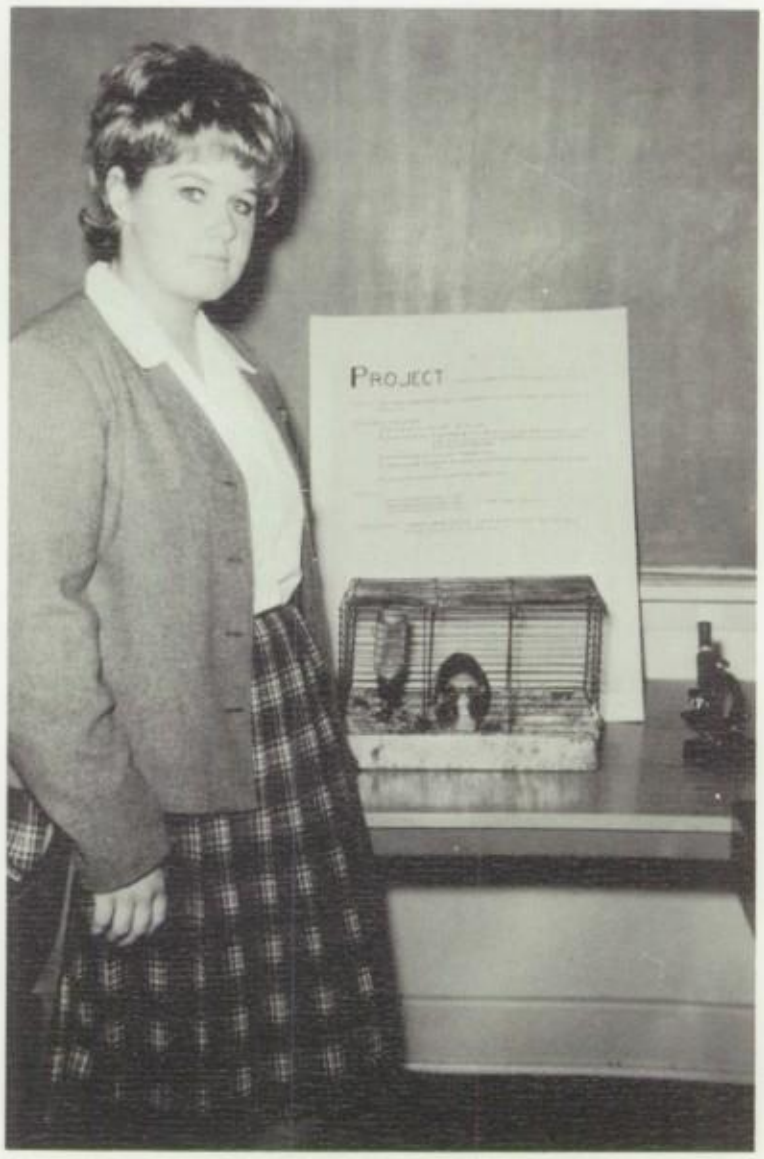
Social chairman Sue Steyart thanks Mr. Joseph Cassidy for his informative report on the activities of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Highlights

Following her visit with the student body, Miss Darlene Gillespie chats with TOWER Editor Peggy Collins.

Heidi Hawkins studies the effect of tranquilizers on offspring of rats.



Experimenting with tar and nicotine, Terry Fry studies their effect on blood cells of guinea pigs.

Maureen Barrett reads temperature as she works with her experiment on salt solution.

Spotlight On Science

From small beginnings, the science fair has expanded so steadily that this year visiting parents, teachers, and scientists crowded to view the experiments of our promising science students. On March 10 the doors of the auditorium opened to reveal impressive exhibits entered under the categories of physical, biological, and general science. Each display was strictly judged according to scientific thought, creative ability, thoroughness, skill, clarity, and dramatic value. Imagination, ingenuity, and originality were especially evident in the winning exhibits. Projects ranged from an analysis of the effects of temperature changes on guppies to a study of the dynamics of a ping pong ball, but fun, excitement, and increased knowledge were common elements shared by all exhibitors.

Plenaria which have been split are studied by Carol Kovac.

Crown for Cindy

Weeks of planning, projects, and panic-stricken pleas for more contributions were climaxed by Mission Day, February 26. Pizza sales, cake walks, raffles, undisguised shameless begging, and a final, frantic fund-raising rally were only a few of the methods employed by each class to earn the most money and the crown for its candidate. This year, senior Cindy Kondusky reigned over Mission Day festivities which included a talent show and movie, The Diary of Anne Frank.

The proceeds from this year's highly successful mission drive were sent to the Holy Names' missions in Basutoland, South Africa, and Arequipa, Peru.

"One for you, two for me." Seniors become skilled money counters during mission drive.

"With all this money, we're bound to win!"

"And where we stop nobody knows." Cake-walk raises money for missions.

Seniors Capture

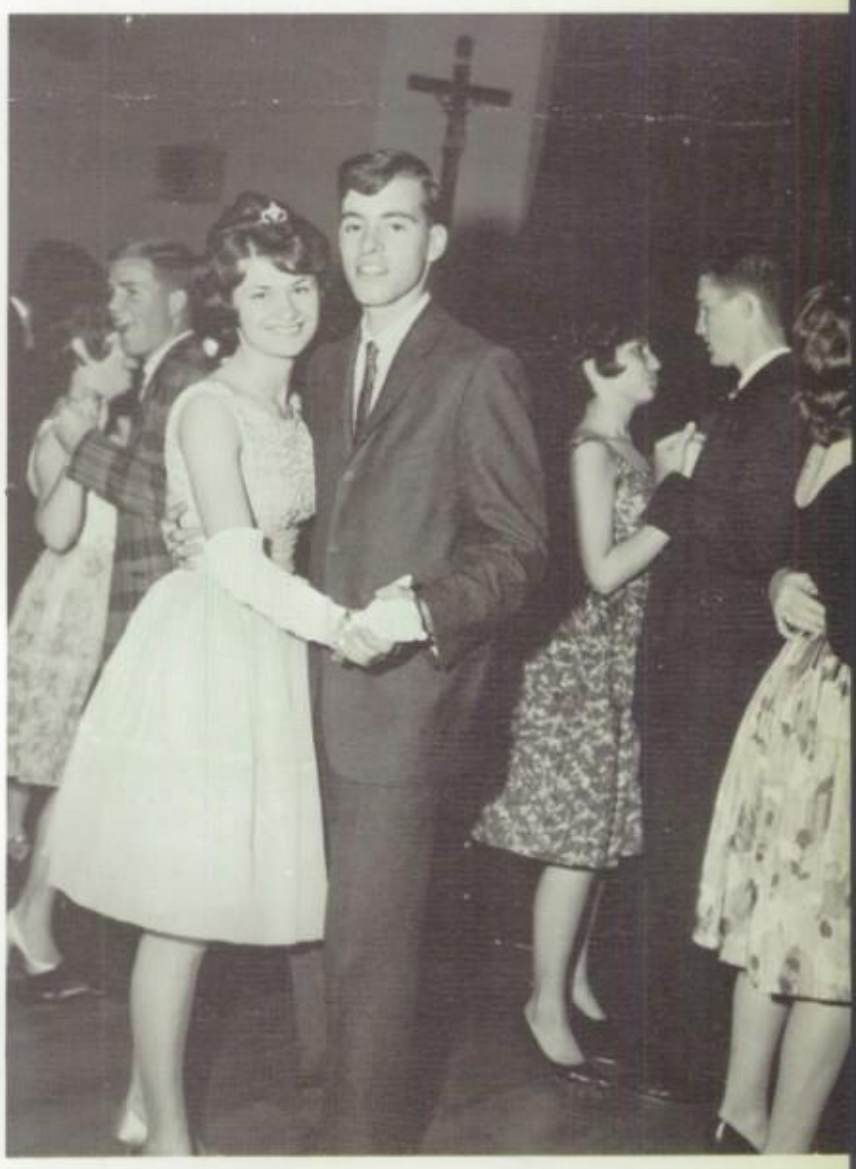
Prefect Kathy Tobin crowns Mission Queen, Cindy Kondusky, and presents court: Ann Tollefson, freshman, Mary Jo Von Eute, sophomore, and Maria Kadar, junior.

Jubilant seniors cheer Cindy's victory.

Helma de Vos, Francine and Carla Van de Ven in authentic Dutch dress provide entertainment for the mission queen with their folk song, Marina, sung in Dutch.

Hostesses serve refreshments to Sylvia and admiring guests.

Reigns Over Carousel



Sylvia and escort lead court and guests in the queen's dance.

Crowded dance floor proves the success of the Aristocrats as music makers.

Miss St. Andrew's Moonlight

Pastel prancing horses, a miniature carousel, and the soft glow of pink and blue lighting successfully stated the theme of the Student Body Semi-Formal, Moonlight Carousel. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Miss St. Andrew's, Sylvia Marchetti, who assumed her throne, a swing entwined with ivy and pink camellias. The royal court and guests were entertained throughout the evening by the "Aristocrats", and all were graciously invited to help themselves to cookies and punch at the attractively decorated refreshment table. All too soon, the dance came to a close with the lingering strains of The party's over . . .

Special Features

Members of the Pasadena Youth Council, Kathleen Ross, Nancy Perry, Elaine Vilven, Malinda Gadiano, Anne Reilley, and Sylvia Marchetti represent St. Andrew's at various meetings.

Informed of scholarship awards from the College of the Holy Names, Sister Miriam Genevieve, principal, shares the pleasant news with delighted recipients Patricia Duffy, Kathleen Tobin, Susan Smith, and Maria Quick.

Throughout the year, energetic and eager students have participated in a number of worthwhile off-campus activities. Invited to join the Pasadena Youth Council, representatives from student council joined young people from the surrounding areas to discuss current events and common problems. Outstanding School Mathematics Study Group students attended weekly classes at Loyola University. These and other endeavors of industrious students were rewarded by a sense of accomplishment, and in some cases, by highly deserved scholarships.

Looking forward to another fascinating session with numbers, Marianne Kandel, Nancy Braun, and Patricia Duffy sign out for their trip to Loyola University.

Acknowledgments

Our Thanks:

To the S. K. SMITH COMPANY for a cover of which we are justly proud;

To MIRRO-GRAPHIC YEARBOOKS, with special commendation of MR. ROBERT HOPKINS for his gracious and never failing consideration.

To MR. THOMAS C. BROOME of Kathryn Novak Studio for his artistic rendering of people, places and things which make up our photographic copy, but especially for his patient understanding of our incompetencies which must have made his work just a little harder.

To our loyal and generous PATRONS without whom our yearbook would lack its greatest assistance.

To the STUDENTS who worked tirelessly and effectively in the TOWER drive.

To the earnest and zealous STAFF who freely spent themselves that the '63 TOWER might become the finest, the greatest, and the best.

Dymdon,

A most competent crew who stage manage Rosenberg Wells' more and more elaborate productions was good enough to forget that I was a monkey.

Yours ever,

Anne Frank

Lynda,

SUMMER SUPPLEMENT

Malinda Gadiano and Don Randolph performed a duet from the musical hit OKLAHOMA.

Spring Showcase

A Charleston number was performed by a St. Andrew girl and La Salle boy.

May 2, 3, 4, 1963. The Spring Showcase brought many people to the La Salle Auditorium on these three evenings. The La Salle Glee Club and St. Andrew's chorus sang familiar pieces from such musical hits as SOUND OF MUSIC and OKLAHOMA and many more. The songs were performed against a background of beautiful sets. All who went to the performance agreed it was beautifully performed and prepared.

From the musical Bye-Bye Birdie, We Love You Conrad, was sung by Tyrone Gaffney with the St. Andrew's chorus in the background.

The Finale was The Battle Hymn of The Republic which was sung by the St. Andrew's girls and La Salle Glee Club.

Michael Thiel as nurse Brent answers the call of her superiors.

May 10 and 11 climaxed weeks of feverish activity and a last, dizzy dress rehearsal with the presentation of the long awaited annual school play, "High Ground." With humor, excitement and suspense, the playwright Charlotte Hastings, captured and held the attention of all present. "Who killed Sarat Carn's brother?" That question successfully puzzled most of the audience until the concluding moments of the drama. Even the sophisticated Perry Mason fans who had correctly guessed the murderer agreed that their expectations for an evening of mystery had not been disappointed. As the curtain fell, enthusiastic applause rewarded the cast and crew for their polished performance.

The Play's The Thing

To the amazement of all around, Willie shows his anger as he slams a piece of wood on the table.

After seeking shelter from the storm the three weary travelers seek warmth from the fire.

In tearful emotion Sarat Carn breaks down at Sister Mary Bonaventure's feet.

As oo's and ah's filled the auditorium the Junior Prom Committee presented the fashions spun from billowing clouds of dreams.

As seniors receive their individual Prom Bids and white carnation the pleased Prom Committee looks on.

"Are you getting a long formal?" "Where is it going to be?" These are the anxious questions which always herald the Prom Presentation. After a fashion show of attractive gowns from Taffy's in Pasadena, the well-guarded secrets were revealed to the expectant student body and faculty. After each senior had been presented with her bid and longstemmed white carnation, the names of the deserving candidates for the royal court were announced. With curiosity satisfied, the students left the auditorium eagerly anticipating the evening of May 17.

"Once Upon A Dream"

The lovely Prom Queen candidates are gathered in hopeful expectation.

After her coronation Queen Peggy Collins and court led the Queens dance as joyful friends looked on.

"Once upon a Dream" in the Regency Room of the Sheraton West, elated seniors and their escourts danced till twelve at their last Prom. Starry-eyed guests ascended the staircase to the realization of the dream which had been theirs for the past year. Music provided by the Hot Toddies set the mood of romance which was interrupted only by the long awaited coronation of the queen, Peggy Collins. The remaining minutes slipped away until there remained only a lovely memory of a perfect dream fulfilled.

As Peggy Collins is crowned queen her princesses Cindy Taillac and Karen Watkins look on with delight. Maureen Boyer crowns Peggy Collins.

Juniors enjoy themselves at their first Prom.

Once upon a dream becomes a reality as the enchanting music of the Hot Toddies drifts through the Regency Room.

Bernadina Tulleners, Allison McNeely, Andrea Purcell, and Theresa Giggar perform some steps of the dance Shipoopi to honor their fathers.

May 15, 1963 was a memorable night for fathers and daughters who attended the annual Father-Daughter Night. The class cheerleaders led the assembly in various songs. The choral group sang medleys from OKLAHOMA and MUSIC MAN. Those who wished to dance could and thus the evening faded away.

Annual

Father-Daughter Night

Baton twirler, Vicky Kappen, led the fathers and daughters in the song "Seventy Six Trombones."

Charm and talent brought great ovation for Marionela de Obaldia, Spanish dancer.

Fond memories are recaptured as old and new Alumnae get together at the Alumnae Luncheon.

The friendly smile of Bobby Mendez shows itself again as she talked with Graduates of 1963.

Alumnae Luncheon

The Alumnae Association held its annual Luncheon on Sunday April 21. The Alumnae could compare their times at Saint Andrew's. For some Alumnae it was the first time they had attended, for others it was an annual event. For all it was an afternoon of enjoyment.

Graduates of 1963 meet and talk over old times with the Alumnae of 1962.

The Choral group sings a medley of songs wishing Sister M. Catherine Irene a very happy feast day.

Scholars from the four classes engage in a quiz program on C. S. F. Day. The victor was the senior-freshman team over the junior-sophomore team.

C.S.F. Day and G.A.A. Half Day

The mystery team on G.A.A. Day were the members of the Faculty who surprised everyone.

Carol Ann DeRose gives a gift to a Freshman during the reading of Wills and Testaments.

The faculty gathered for luncheon at the end of the year sponsored by the Mother's Club.

Sylvia Marchetti receives the Most Valuable Player of the Year trophy at the final G.A.A. meeting.

The treasured honor of being G.A.A. President is realized by Carol Kovack as she is sworn in by the outgoing President, Elaine Vilven.

Trophies, Honors, New Offices

Silent, sad, and misty eyed the senior class of 1963 think back over their past four years as St. Andrew's girls.

Monsignor Hourhihan confers a final honor on Marianne Kandel.

June 2, 1963. The end of four years for the senior class at St. Andrew's was climaxed as they received their diplomas at ceremonies which began at eight p.m. in the Church. Many weeks of rehearsals and hard work had paid off. The day began with Mass and Holy Communion. Breakfast was served by the class of '65 to the graduating class of '63. Following breakfast all went home looking forward to that evening. Following the Graduation the Graduates went to the Auditorium where they were met and congratulated by friends and relatives.

In preparation for the future the Seniors attended a retreat together for the last time.

As is fitting and proper the Senior Class began their eventful day with Mass and Holy Communion.

Caps, Gowns For

Monsignor Hourihan, members of the faculty and seniors gather for breakfast together.

Crowning joy of receiving a diploma is realized as each senior receives her treasured parchment.

Tears of joy and sadness marked the end of graduation as seniors entered the auditorium.

Graduation

Congratulations were in order as friends and relatives welcome the graduates after graduation.

In a solemn ceremony in Church, students are received into the Sodality of Our Lady of Grace.

Final Activities

The last page of this school year was written on June 7. For the freshman, a year on new experience, lessons and friends had been the preparation for a more satisfying role in the student body during the years to come. The sophomores looked ahead to the prospects, plans, and projects which would fill their junior year. Juniors confidently faced the future which would bring them the coveted and demanding places of the school's leaders. For the seniors, there were close friendships, memories and dreams. Theirs was the joy of new beginning and the tears of parting from their Alma Mater. Thus, each of the students who had played, studied, and prayed together during the past year felt and reflected the bittersweet emotions of departure.

At a surprise activity the TOWER "63" is given to an unsuspecting student body.

Dear
Wonderful Ones
